School Life

It is the Coyote Staff's desire to present as the theme for the 1951 Coyote the more familiar phases of school life which are evidenced today as yesterday. Even though the high school of today is very different from that of yesterday, the same ideas of friendship, enjoyment, and cooperation are evident now. The Coyote Staff attempts with pictures and words to preserve the happenings of the school year for 1950-1951. Through the years many have remarked that high school days were "the best years of their lives."

In 1892 the first Wichita Falls graduating class completed the final two years of its work in a building on the present site of Austin school, the traditional cultural subjects being taught with no choice of electives. In 1910 because of the increase in population the first high school building was erected and now houses the students of Reagan Junior High School. In the spring of 1924 the present WFSH building was completed, but it contained both the high school and the junior college until 1936. At that time the junior college moved into its own building, and WFSH became the separate unit it is today.

Senior High School has grown much during its lifetime. The first graduating class had only five graduates, but in May the senior class of 1951 will have 361 members. Today's students have many different subjects from which to choose their courses. Some of these newer units are distributive education, new speech courses, mechanical drawing, band, a cappella, general music, stagecraft, tennis, commercial law, diversified occupations, journalism, shorthand, typing, drivers' training, guidance, visual education, office practice and bookkeeping.

All the students of WFSH are proud of their school and the honors which have come to it through contest representatives in many fields, such as art, commercial, literary, publications, speech, scholastic and sports. It has been these contestants and all the other students of WFSH who have made Senior High School one of the outstanding schools of the state. In all walks of life former students of WFSH have made places for themselves and reached great heights in many fields. To all the students who have made WFSH what it is today, we sincerely dedicate this 1951 Coyote.

Dedication

In Memoriam

After a long illness death came in December of 1950 to Mr. J. C. Mathis, a former social science teacher in Wichita Falls Senior High School. Mr. Mathis, a faculty member for many years, was a friend to all. Ever sincerely interested in the welfare of both teachers and students, Mr. Mathis gained many friends who will continue to miss him. At a faculty dinner honoring him at his retirement Mr. Mathis declared, "If I had my life to go over, I should not want to live other than as I have—helping and teaching boys and girls."

In August of 1950 Senior High School lost Mr. J. W. Webb, long a teacher of commercial subjects at Wichita Falls Senior High School. He taught until the time of his sudden and unexpected death. Mr. Webb was faithful to his duties and loyal to his friends. Always cheerful and pleasant, he never criticized or complained. His friendly manner guided many students through their years in high school, and he will long be remembered gratefully.

English

Ranging from simple paragraphs to long and involved term papers, work in the department of English provides enough variety to keep everyone busy. In collaboration with other departments, this one helps to sponsor three major school activities—the Writers' Club, The Coyote and The Coyote News. Use of the semester plan provides for students the enjoyment of literature and gives all the opportunity to write for pleasure and profit.

English

In the study of literature students find opportunity for enjoyment of a wide variety of readings from the writings of many authors, both American and English. Through recreational reading for book reviews, students add to their general store of knowledge. Writing experiences grow naturally out of the study of literature continued throughout the term devoted to the reading of essays, poems, short stories and plays.

This department offers courses in business mathematics, algebra, plane geometry, solid geometry, and trigonometry. It places emphasis on the visualization, exactness of thought, reading and writing of the mathematical language. Everyday application of these practices provides a sound basis for any type of mathematics, from the simplest arithmetic to the most complicated problem in trigonometry.

Science

Chemistry, biology and physics compose the courses offered in the science department. The course in biology includes the study of all living things, both in the animal and plant kingdoms. Chemistry teaches the building blocks of which the world is made and their construction into millions of compounds. Physics includes the study of sound, light, mechanics, heat, electricity and anything which causes movement or change of temperature.

Senatus Romanus

Latin

The Latin courses help the students to gain knowledge of the English language. It provides a foundation for the study of modern languages as well as a background for history and the formation of cultural standards. In the advanced courses students read in Virgil the best poetry produced by the Romans and gain a wider knowledge of mythology so necessary to the understanding of much of the world's great poetry.

Spanish

Accurate pronunciation, acquisition of practical vocabulary, sufficient knowledge of functional grammar and interest in learning the language are steps taken in the progressive development of Spanish. The speaking is especially stressed because of the proximity to Mexico. The study of Spanish aids, as does the study of any other foreign language, in a better comprehension of English; and likewise it serves as a key to a better understanding and appreciation of the Latin-American people, their countries and their culture. The Spanish language is a means of promoting the "Good Neighbor Policy" and of developing American solidarity.

Training in advertising and display selling, stock work and special service is a part of this course. The advanced selling, buying of merchandise and general floor work are a part also.
